

Is the Riverland disaster ready?

Bringing together community service and emergency management organisations

All emergencies, from bushfires and storms, to industrial accidents or loss of critical infrastructure, cause disruption. More often than not, it's the people living with existing challenges who are hardest hit by emergencies and have the longest journey to recovery.

Experience tell us that community service organisations– organisations who support people to lead independent and fulfilling lives – make major contributions to how our communities prepare for, respond to and recover from emergencies.

Red Cross is facilitating this important workshop in partnership with the CFS, MFS, SAPOL, SES and the Berri Barmera Council, with the goals of:

- Improving how organisations prepare for emergencies
- Identifying opportunities to build resilience of clients and customers
- Strengthening collaboration between community service and emergency management organisations.
